ST. THOMAS MORE HIGH SCHOOL

1936 — 1962

Our intention is to show some degree of similarity between the effort and care taken in order to produce a fine painting and the effort and diligence required to create the St. Thomas More graduate.

FACULTY: An apt designer for every tone.

CLASSES: The tools and surfaces which are incorporated into the painting.

ACTIVITIES: The coloring which accents our painting.

Faculty

The apt designer for every tone.

Administering a high school is a tedious task which requires patience, planning and perseverance. Fr. John J. Cusack, C.M., Rector, and our Dean of Studies, Fr. J. G. Prior, C.M., have willingly accepted this responsibility.

Our friend when we are feeling most disgruntled, Mrs. M. Mobilio, the School Nurse.

Nutritious sustenance is of course necessary for active and well-functioning bodies. Our cafeteria ladies, Mrs. O'Malley, Mrs. Farrell, Mrs. Burkhart, and Mrs. Oswald, provide us with these vital needs.

Miss Katherine Kennedy, School Secretary, and Miss Frances Harrington on a quiet afternoon in the School Office.

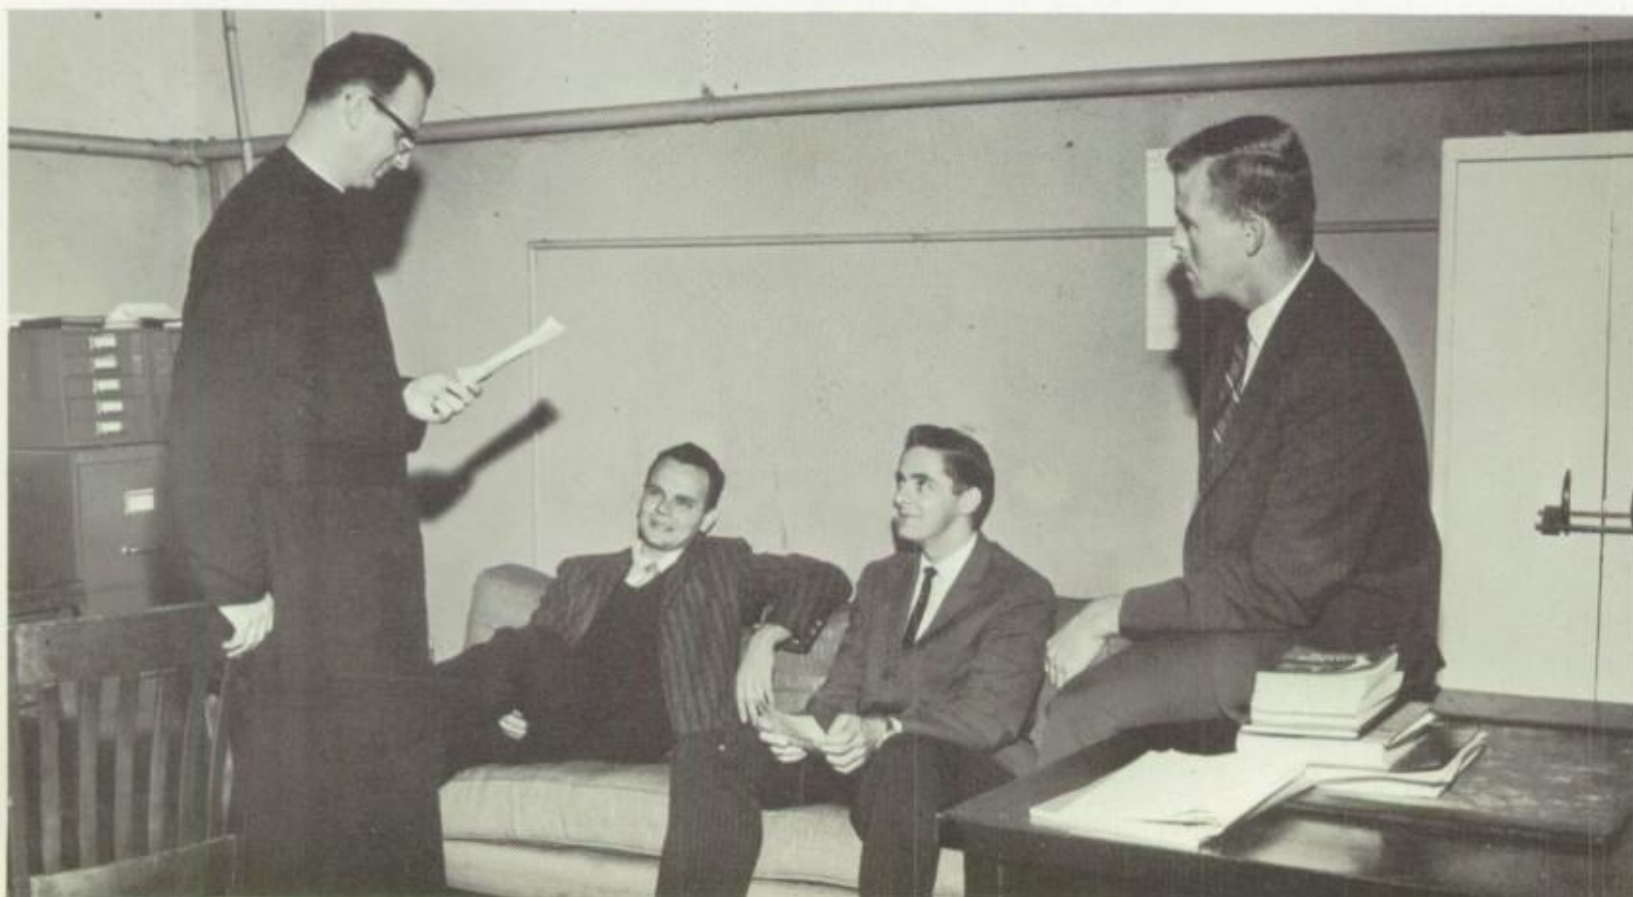

Science and German have been related from their modern era, therefore Mr. T. Staruch and Mr. R. Bullick, have much in common for discussion.

Five competent pedagogues, Mr. V. Coyne, Mr. E. McCauley, Mr. A. Campiglia, Mr. E. Carey, and Mr. G. Nider, meet just before journeying again into the struggle for knowledge.

A complete student balances the growth of his mind with the growth of his body. Here Fr. T. Prior, C.M., Mr. P. Croley, Mr. J. Purcell, and Mr. T. Payne plan for the development of both.

After a long day Fr. Walter, T.O.R., Fr. Mallaghan, C.M., and Fr. Myles, T.O.R., find time to laugh at one of the day's events.

Fr. Wye, C.M., Fr. Aloysius, T.O.R., Fr. Green, C.M., and Fr. Daly, C.M., realize these qualities and manifest them in class.

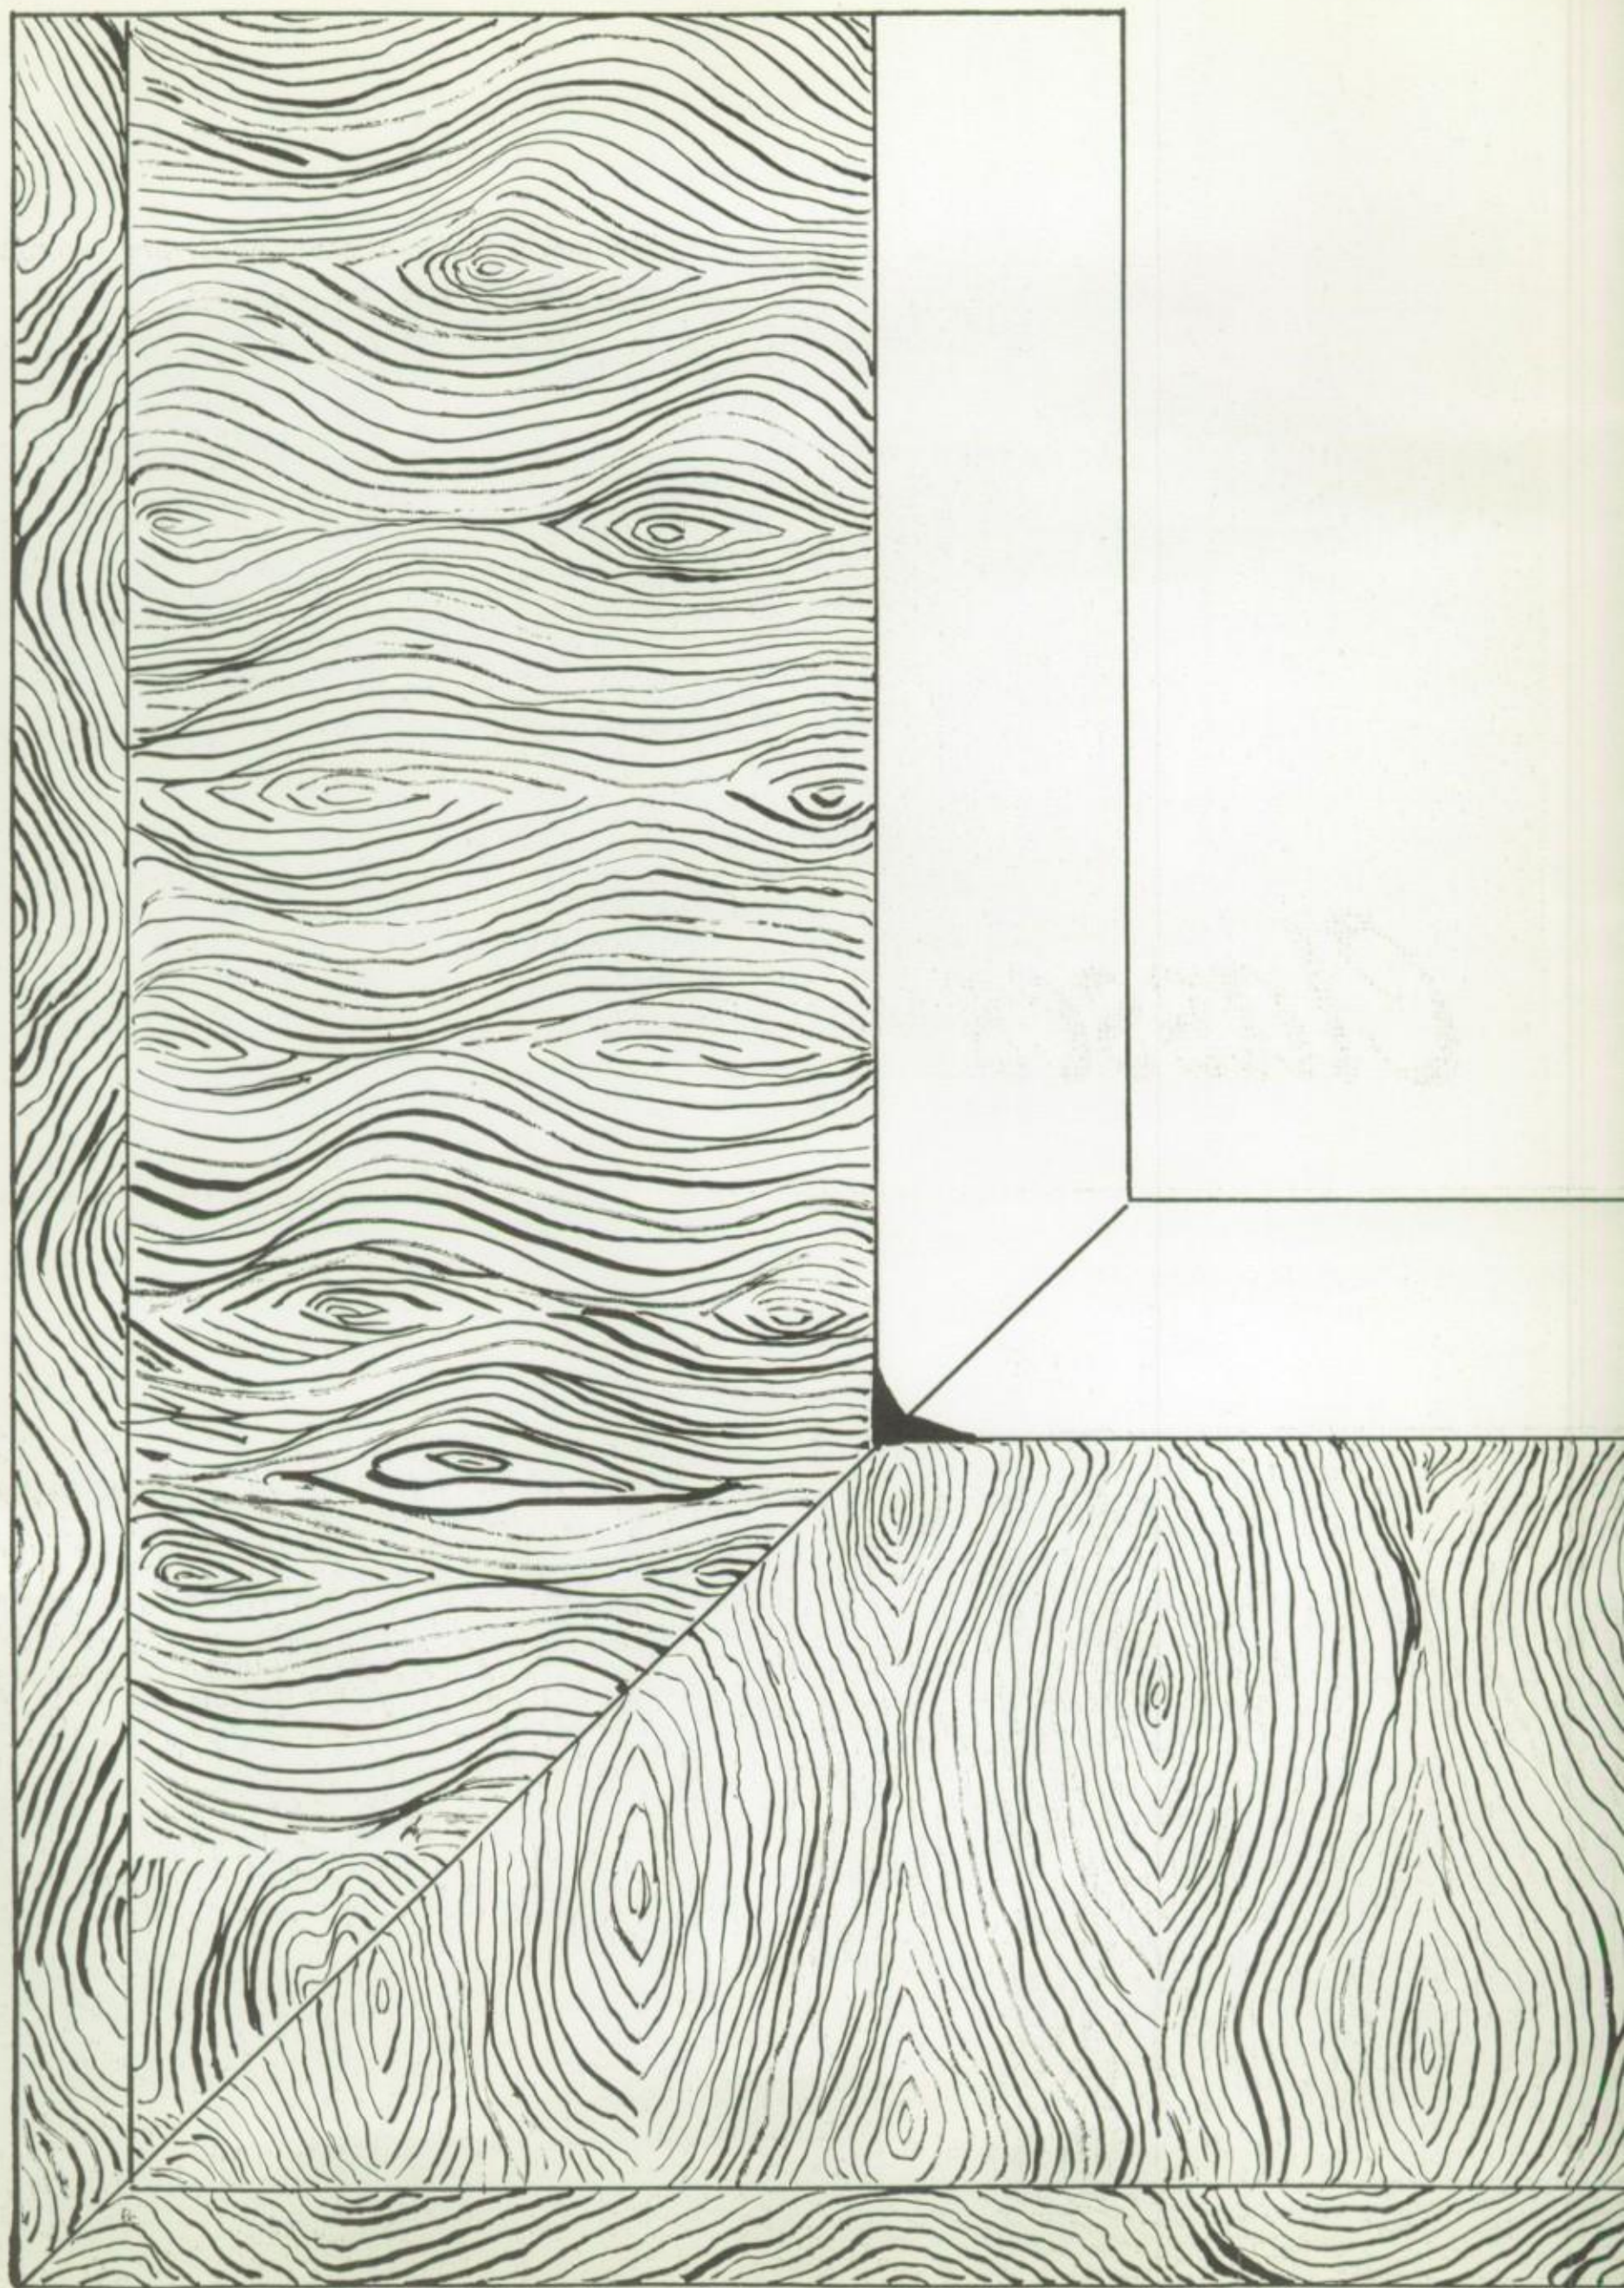

We at St. Tommie's are especially proud of our four secular priests. This year Fr. Kinney, Fr. McAleer, Fr. McVeigh, and Fr. Smith will be completing their twenty-sixth year here. It is with deep appreciation that we hold them in our hearts.

Our guidance advisors, Fr. Doyle, C.M., and Fr. Fogarty, C.M., find a few minutes to chat with Fr. Dillon, C.M., our Treasurer, on the spiritual and material needs of "our" little world. In order to teach, one must command respect and be friendly and firm at the same time.

The tools and surfaces which are worked and shaped into the painting.

Classes

"Fair is foul, foul is fair," thus spake Sir Nider in reference to A-5's English test marks.

Looking up to a religion class by Fr. Aloysius.

Freshmen of section D-2 listen attentively to Mr. Carey's vivid description of Charles Dickens' novel.

There's no need to whisper, the truth is big enough to shout.

Fr. Walter's German class seems deeply in thought over the classics in German Poetry.

Mr. Croley instructs section A-3 on the many applications of Business Law.

Knowledge has many facets, one of which is humility.

First the quiet then a moment of truth for an intent Freshman Algebra class.

Fr. McAleer's P.O.D. class receives invaluable information from R. McManus of A-2 on the necessity of a proper diet to build strong, able-bodied Americans.

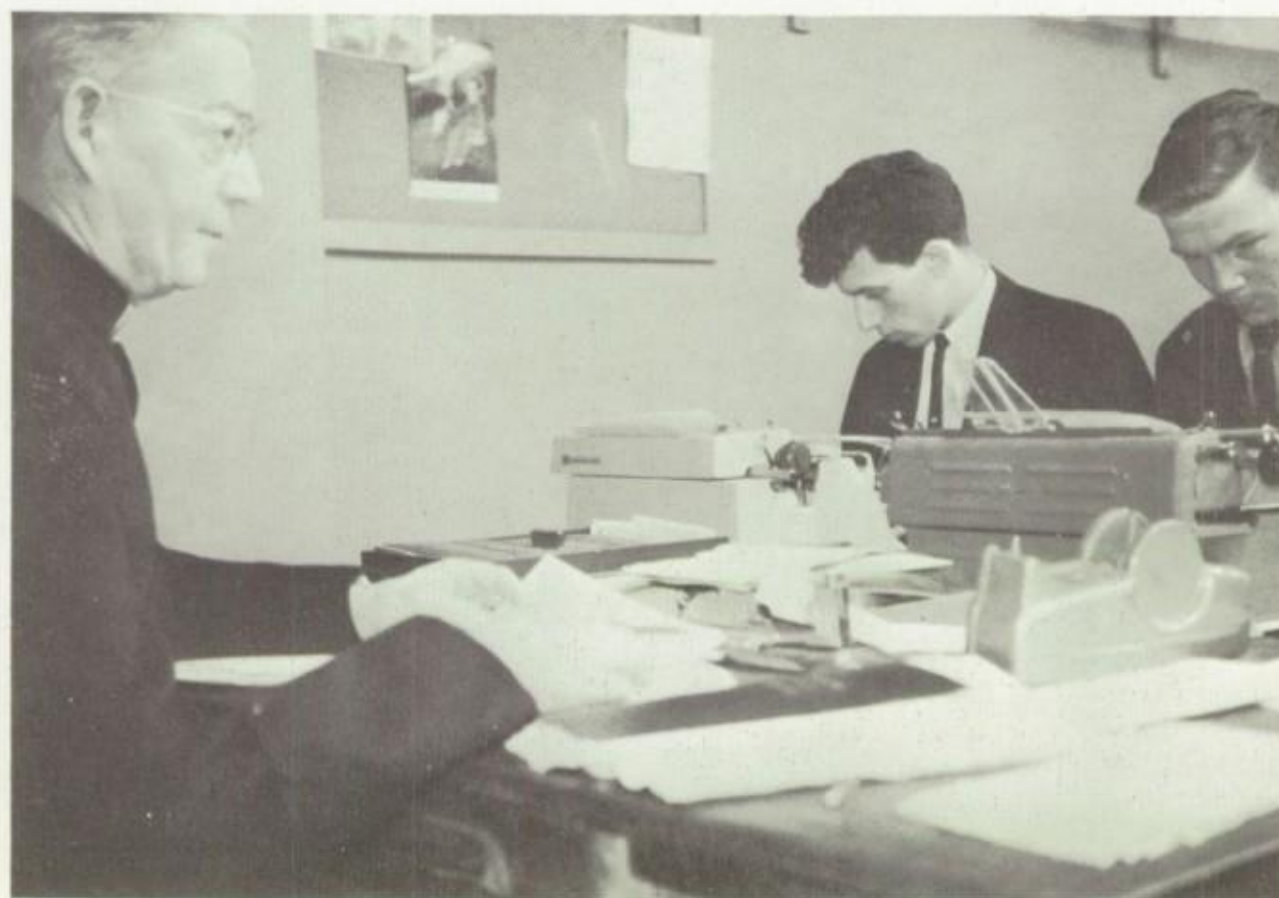

Divided enthusiasm meets intent effort in an early morning Algebra class.

The Balance of Life lies in these things.

Under the able guidance of Fr. McVeigh this Senior typing class realizes that practice makes perfect. Speed and accuracy are the watchwords of this class.

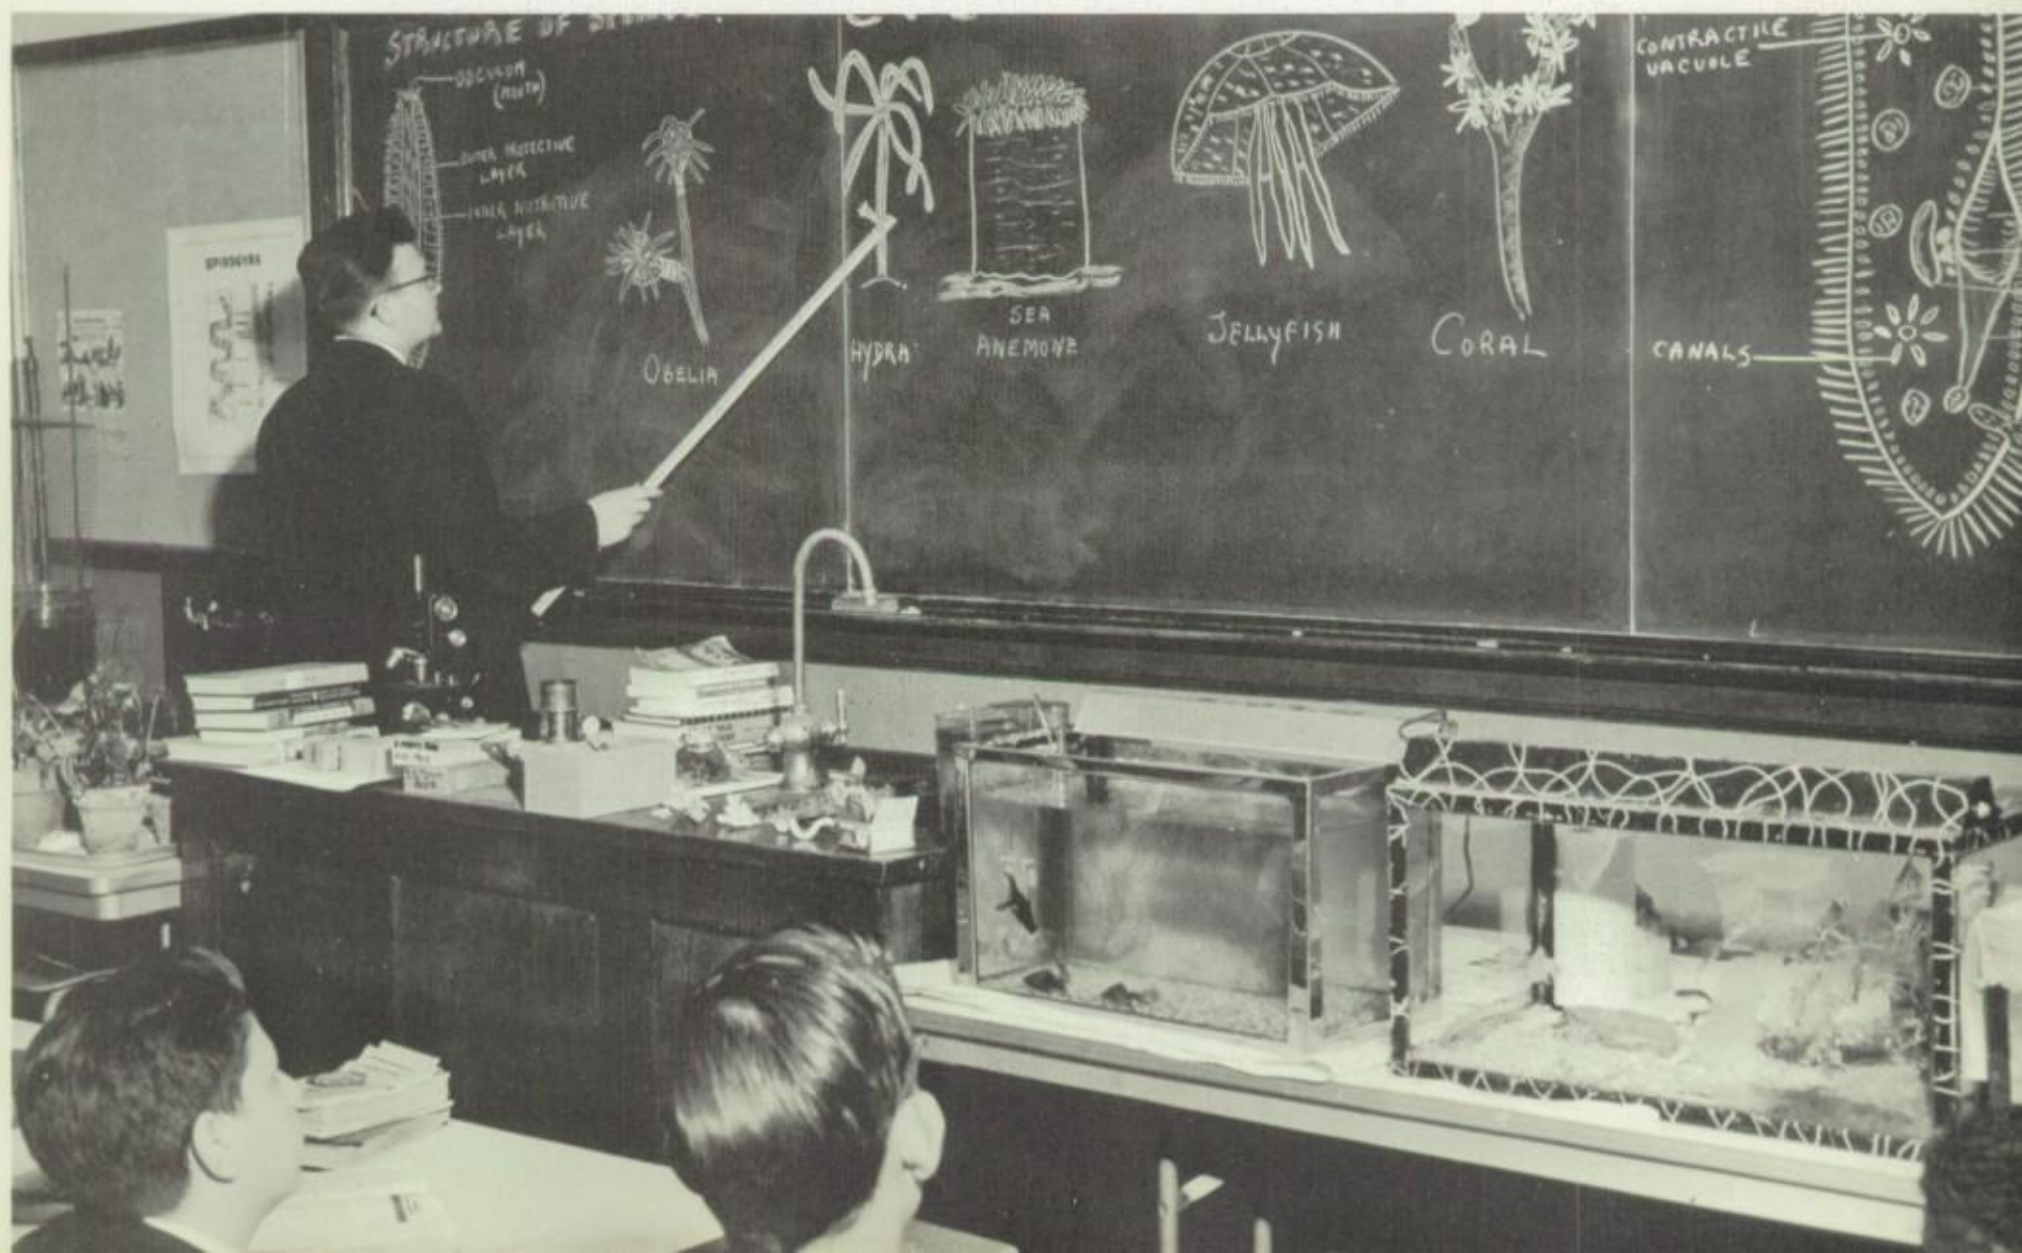

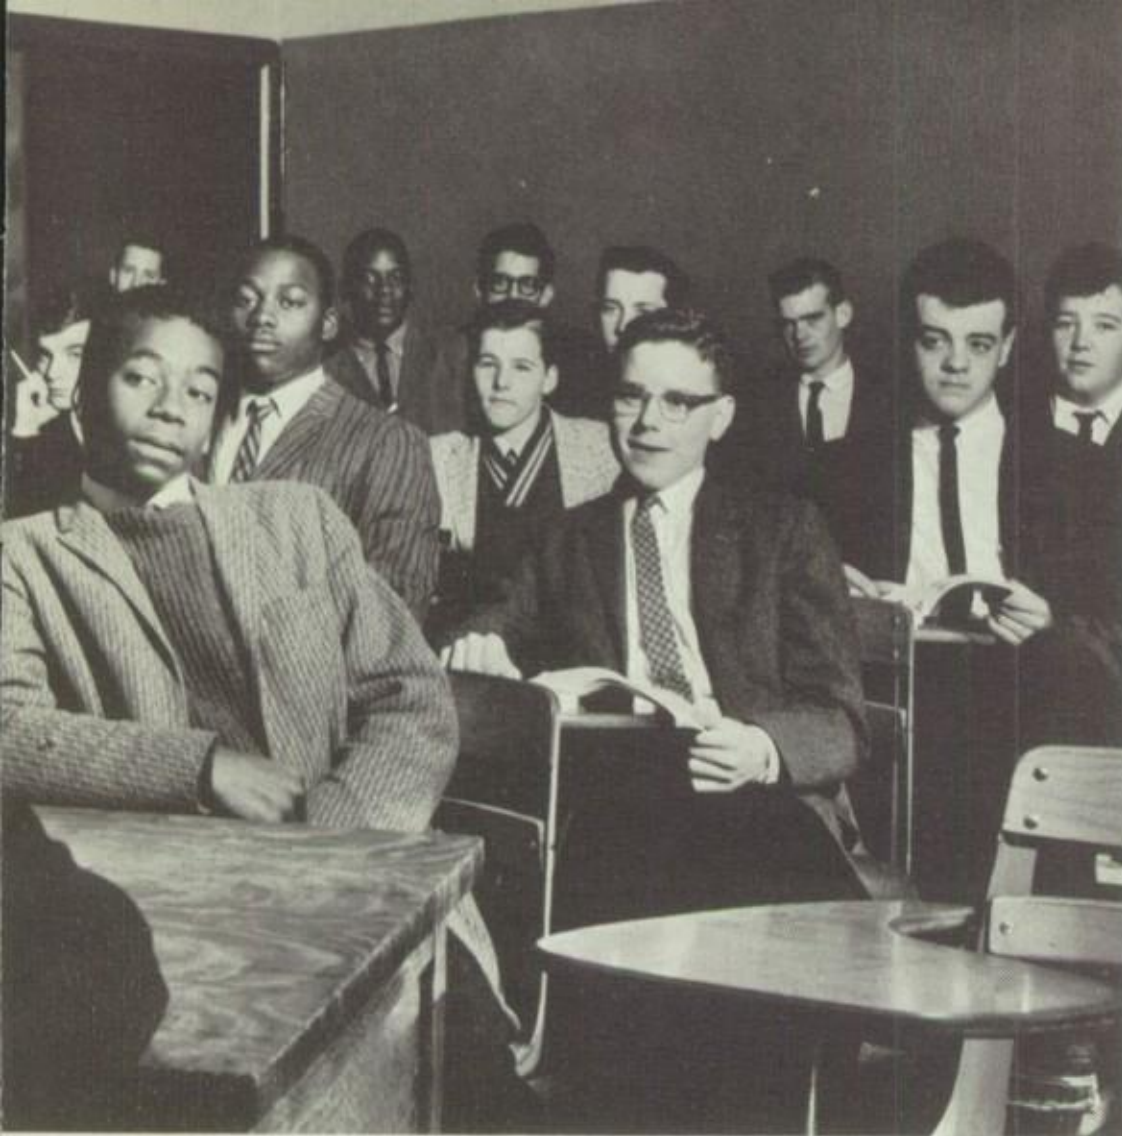

English Literature seems to be the only interest of Fr. Daly's students during a day's lecture for Section C-5.

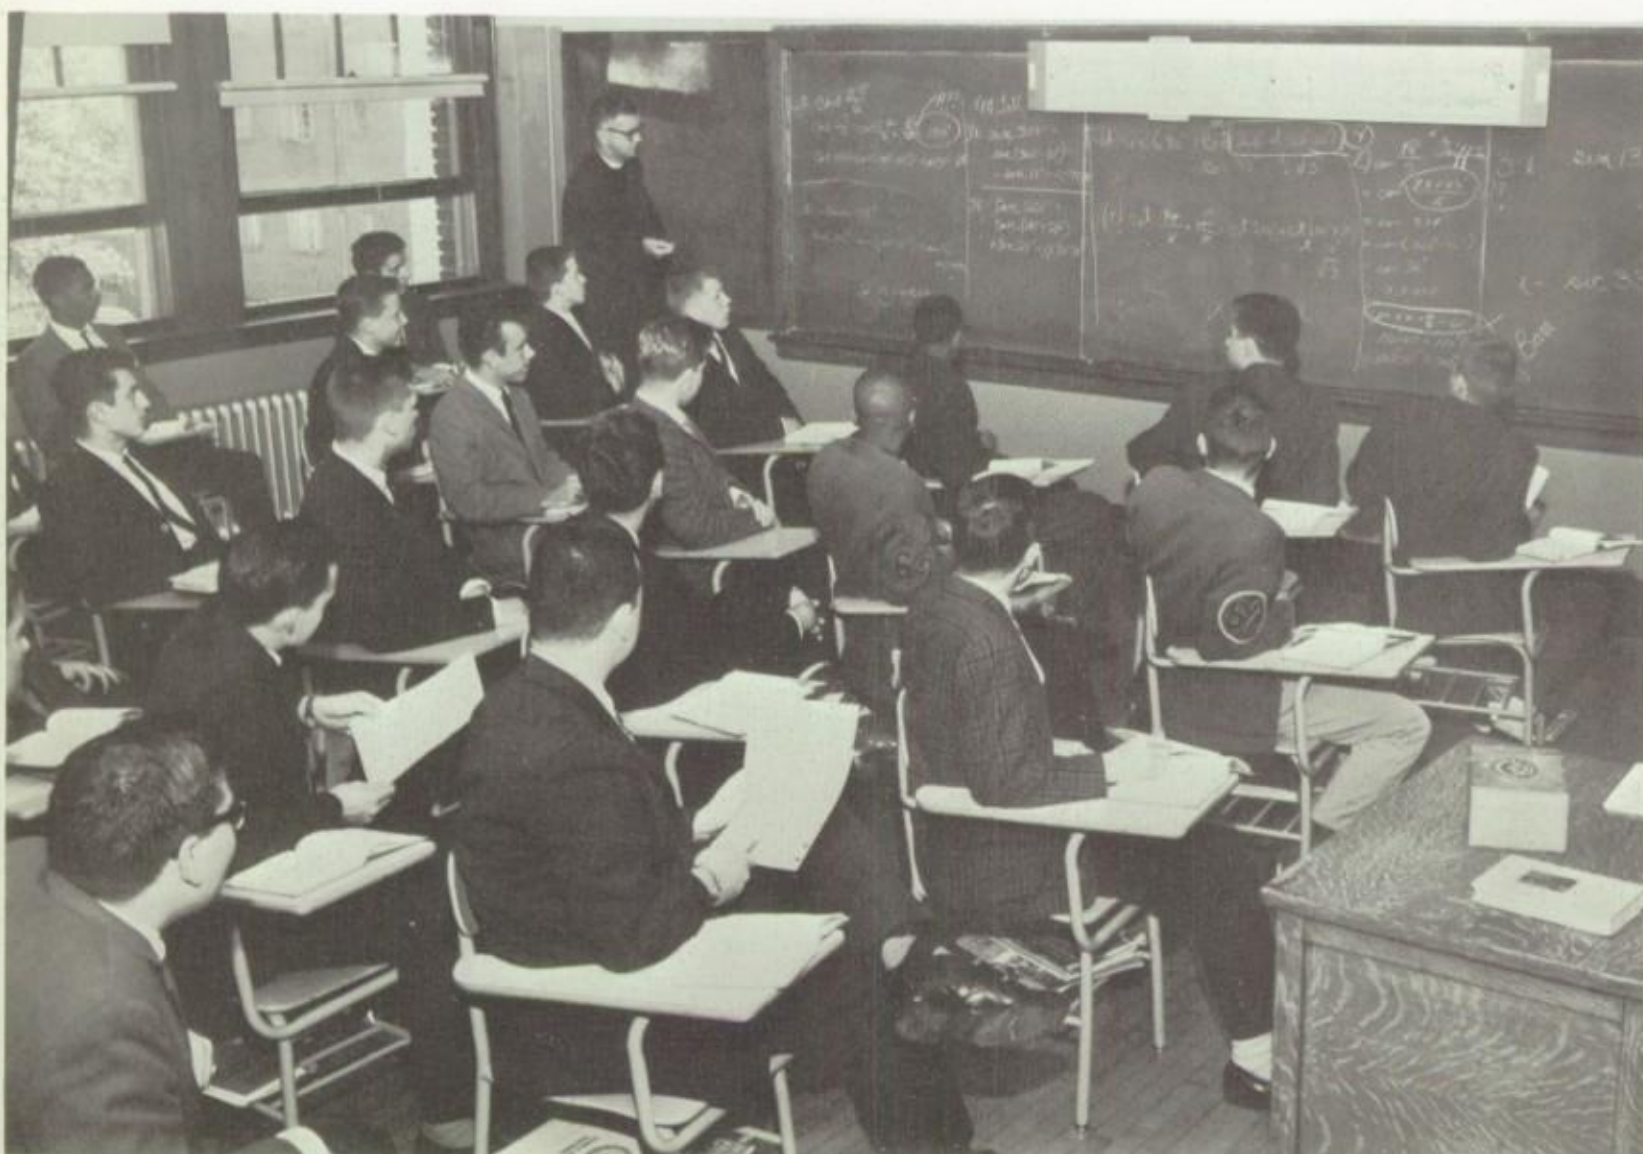

All the world is turned to the sciences. Here we find the intrigues of the Biological world illuminated by Mr. Staruch during an animated lecture.

On moments like this the classroom accumulation of data begin to take form and seem to take meaning in relation to other things.

Fr. Smith surveys the day's problem with a critical eye, as A-1's Trigonometry class looks carefully upon the results.

"The tools and surfaces which are incorporated into a painting," this we have chosen to describe the classes and us as students. We come as blank as canvas, potentially great paintings. We must each be prodded, encouraged, praised, corrected, and guided. The brush of our painter slowly and carefully brings to fruition the promise of the greatness which is ours. The variegated classes are as the colors; the proper mixture completes the picture.

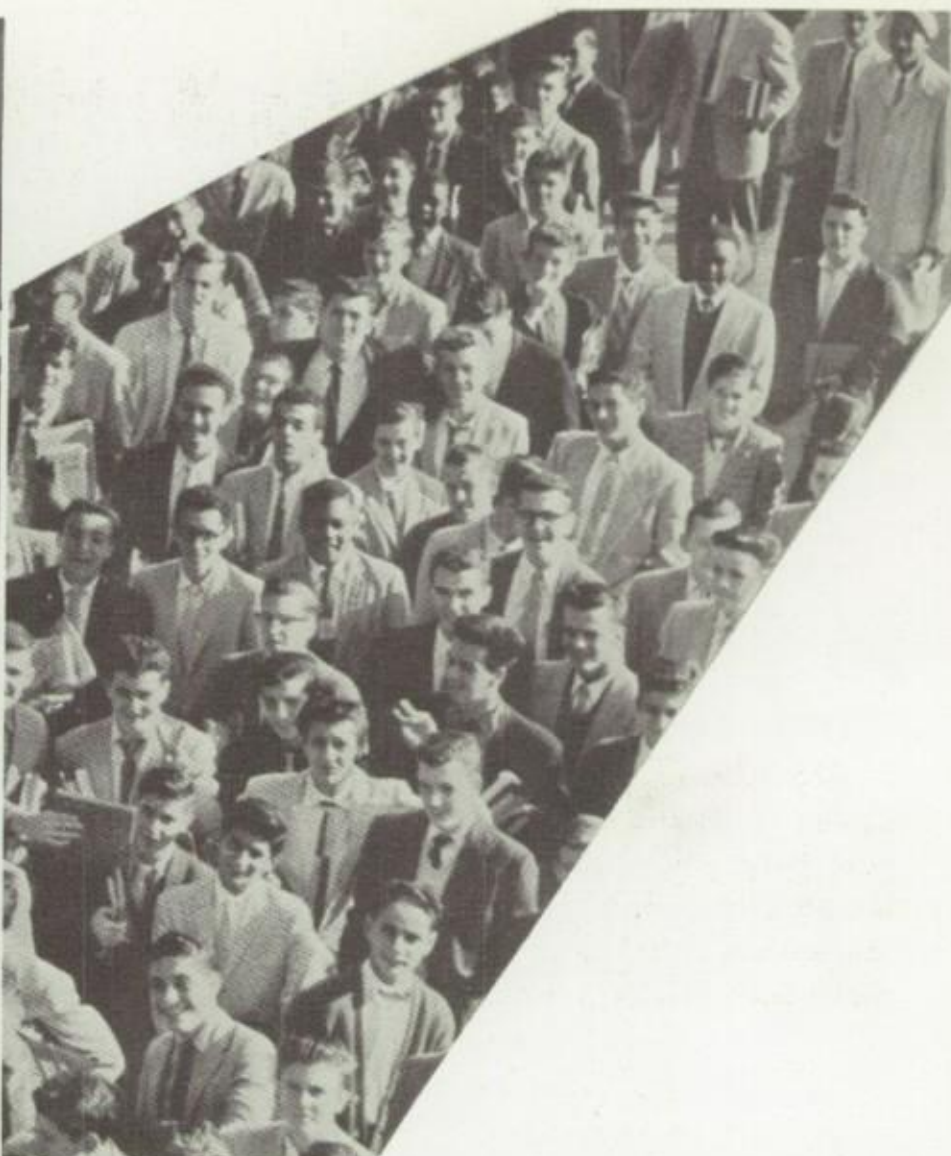

Setting a brush to canvas and urging meaning from the color and blank surface is the work and love of an artist with an understanding of his materials. Fr. Kinney performs this delicate task, as we steal a glance at one of his freshman Latin classes.

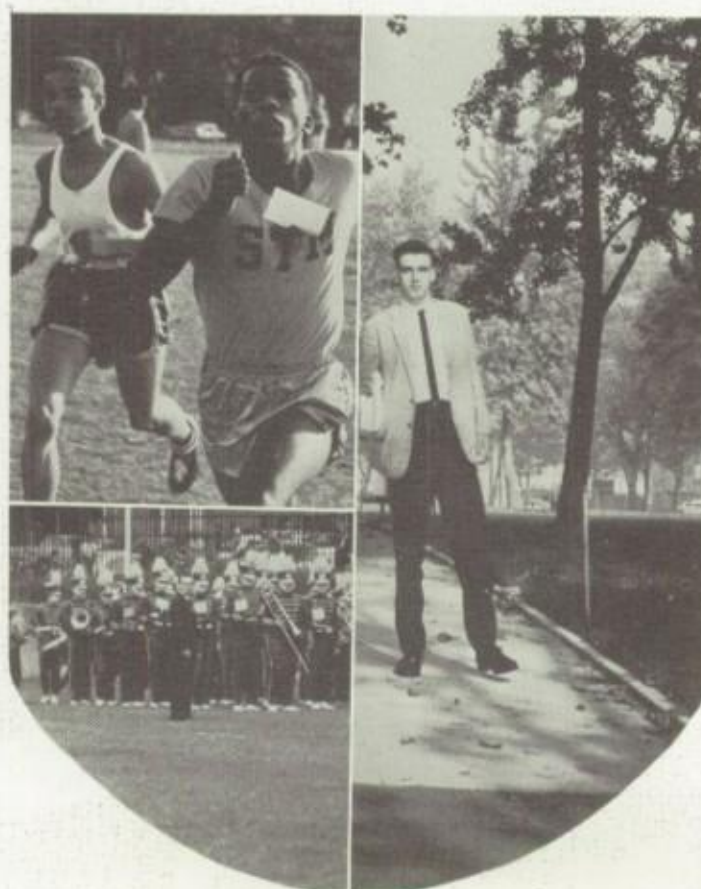

Mr. Bullock demonstrates the validity of a chemical formula for section B-I as the students prepare to duck and hope for the best.

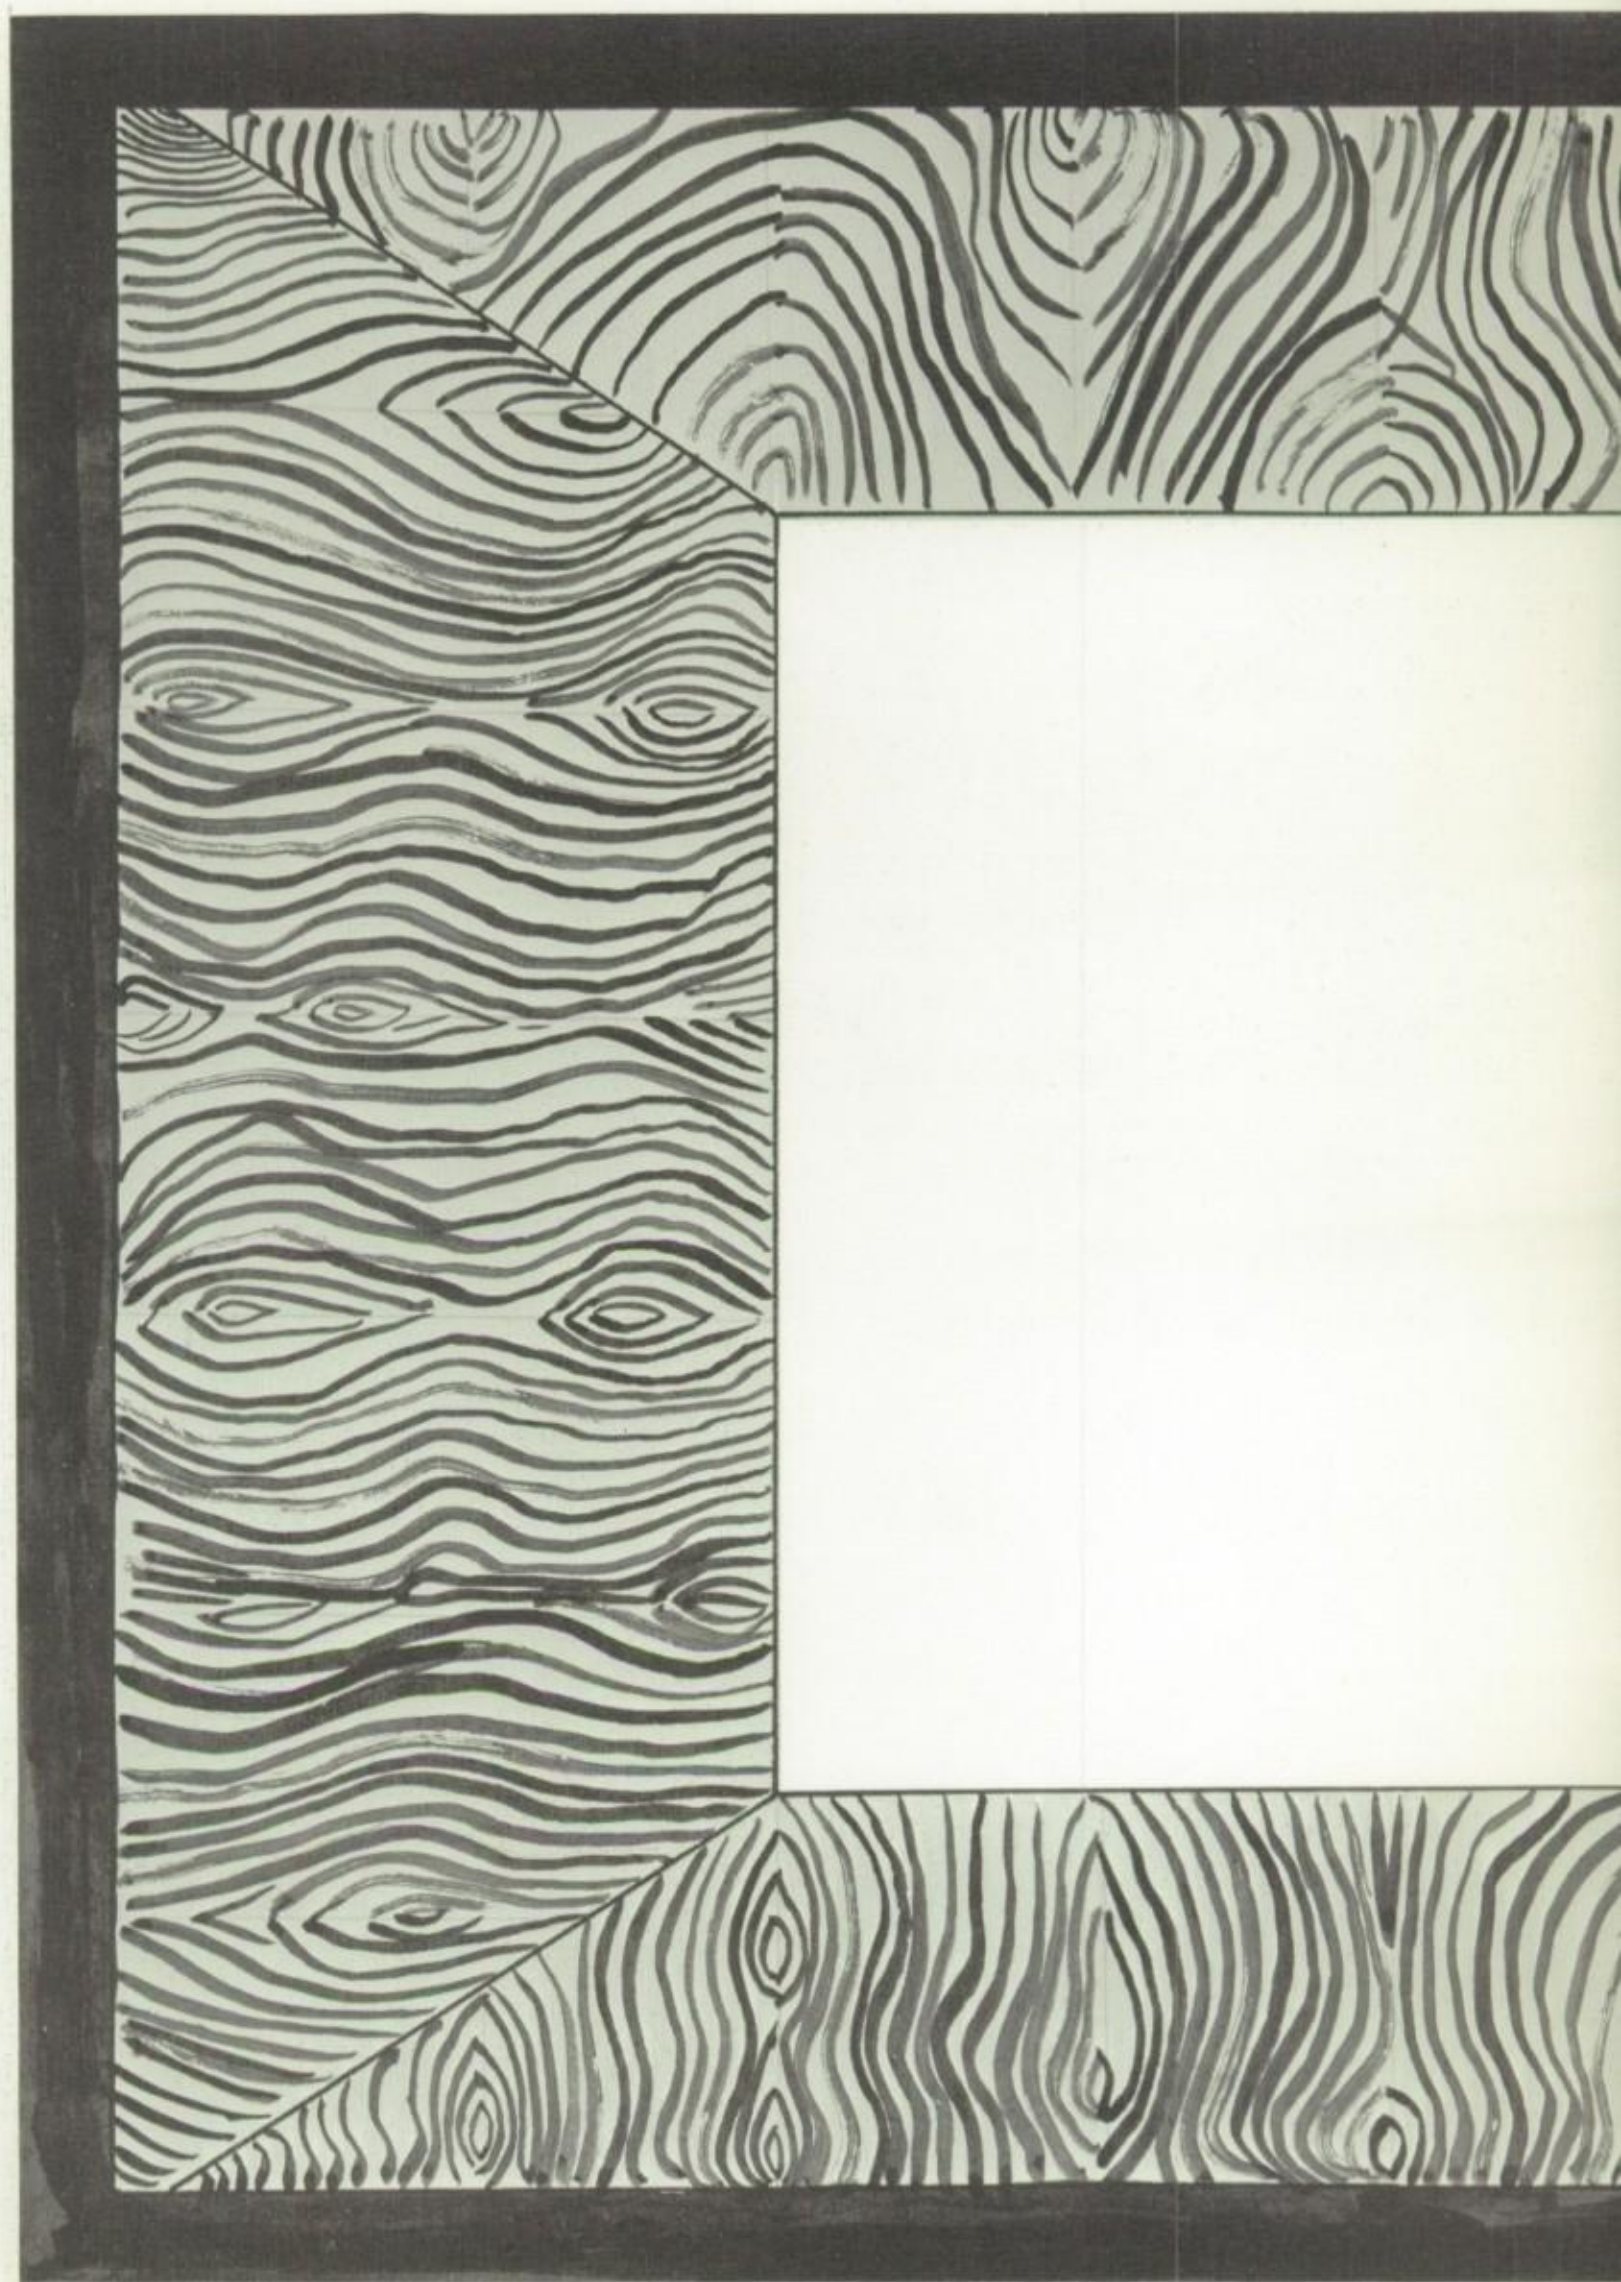

Venimus, Vidimus, Vicimus.

The sciences are of the utmost import in our present society, but man is not solely a function of need, his knowledge must be modulated by what man has felt and dreamed of through the ages. The advances of contemporary science are to be lauded but the thoughts of great men are to be pondered if man is to be complete. This completeness of man is what we have found at St. Thomas More.

Activities

The medium in which we are working is colored by experience and work. The goal to which we are working then uses these activities as its paint pots.

Fr. Doyle, chancellor moderator and staff: C. Battista, B. Callahan, C. Callahan, T. Carr, R. Clark, C. Collins, T. Cupples, M. Fell, C. Flaherty, F. Flemming, G. Guerin, F. Guerrieri, J. Horvay, J. ## THE CHANCELLOR

Fr. Doyle conferring with Chancellor editors.

The knowledge we acquire and the ability to communicate are great attributes which we attempt to perfect. The Chancellor gives us an apt opportunity to present our thoughts to our fellow students. Our paper has become the eyes and ears of our school; it has the ability, properly used, to unify the whole of our student body in supporting the various activities. We've enjoyed the trust of our moderator, Fr. Doyle, and his good judgment in journalistic problems.

The tedious screening of copy being performed by the editors.

For these families, the famous "Merry Christmas" may lose some of its worldly ring this year. If so, it may well grow in its deeper and truer significance. It is very often in times of sorrow that the real, true value of things can be better estimated. The true value of Christmas, the season of peace and joy to those who have sorrow, and with Christ's disappearance, during the holy season of Christmas, may these thoughts mitigate your sorrows and fill your hearts with the peace, contentment, and deep spiritual joy which the Christchild brought with His coming.

May the blessing of God the Father, Son and Holy Spirit descend upon each of you and your families and remain with you throughout the New Year.

BULLETIN PRESS

Conference

Saturday, December 2, the editor, LOR attended the Bulletin Press Conference. The Conference is a high school newspaper of the Valley. The Conference is held at the building at 1001 and Market Streets. The editor, Mr. Beauchamp, gave an address from Mr. R. E. Beauchamp, Bulletin's editorial staff.

The editors were then split into four groups. The groups went to four different rooms to rotation. They were reporters in their field. The reporters covered some of the many aspects of a good newspaper, such as the planning of a news-page, the young reporters were then given a good dinner at the after-dinner speaker was Mr. J. H. Ross, a member of the editorial staff.

The editors completed their day with a guided tour of the Bulletin building. St. Thomas More was represented by Messrs. Bernard Callahan, Richard Pepini, Francis Guettrieri, and Charles Flaherty.

Senior TAKE

On December 17, the seniors in the school took the Annual Preliminary Test. This test is a vital part in the guidance program at Saint Thomas More. If you are in college, this test tells him the particular field in which he has given to our students as a test for the College Board. A nominal fee of one dollar was charged to cover costs.

Editor of 'Utopian'

The task of being Editor of the UTOPIAN, our year book, is an arduous and responsible one. This year it falls upon a Senior of Section A-1 whose name is Joseph Horvay. Joe has demonstrated his flair for the UTOPIAN and the moderator, Mr. Coyne, has appointed him Editor. It is Joe's job to see that everyone on the staff completes their work in the quickest and most accurate manner as possible.

The moderator, Mr. Coyne, has given the staff members much of his valuable time and effort in order to present to our student body and the public a championship caliber year book. With the moderator, editor and staff working as one, the CHANCELLOR feels certain

THE UTOPIAN

The chronicle of our year is one of the most important remembrances we shall have in our future life. The many mistakes and postponements, difficulties and successes we experienced, will all be part of our life. Many skills and not a little patience were provided for this year's publication. To Fr. Cusack, our rector, and our publisher, and all who have helped to bring this remembrance successfully to us, we express a sincere thank you.

THE MARCHING BAND

SAINT THOMAS MORE BAND

Under the apt direction of Fr. Maligan, C.M., our band has marched, played, marched, and marched some more. During this year we found ourselves in the bright green costume of the school, parading on St. Patrick's Day parade, drilling at La Salle in the band competition, and with spring we changed our tempo. With the showing of the printemps green we began the long and arduous task of preparing for our annual spring concert. Now, we are formal and reserved, we function in a new media, we are almost a new band. We are grateful to Fr. Maligan for the band and for the many patient hours he has spent with us and on our behalf.

In keeping with the tradition of S.T.M. the band has presented itself as a fine and able representative of our school. As a group they will store as a cherished memory the advent of this year's Guest Director.

After a fierce internal conflict, Fr. Fulton (R. Pepino) breaks his vow to give up his music to God.

A flippant remark by Dr. Morrell (D. Quartapella) only arouses animated smiles from these tolerant Fathers.

Father Carey (E. Dewitt) decides to give the Fr. Rector a bit of unexpected penance by invading his favorite chair.

With his usual expression of arrogance, Fr. Keen (W. Hampton) points the finger of accusation at Fr. Ahern.

Dr. Morrel (E. Golaszewski) checks Jimmy Mayers (H. Lister) pulse as Fr. Ahern (F. Nolan) watches with a worried gaze.

Drama as a form of art dates back to the early Greeks in the fifth and sixth centuries B.C. To this day it remains as a beautiful and essential particle of man's culture. In creating our masterpiece therefore it is vital to include this worthwhile requisite.

DRAMA CLUB

The Drama Club, "MORE MEN" with their director Mr. Nider and their moderator Fr. Daly, C.M.

This year's Follies was the usual big success. The many hours of tedious work were rewarded by capacity crowds at this year's performance. The whole presentation was enhanced by the artistic contributions of one of our most esteemed faculty members.

The material being worked upon in this unique situation has the capacity to create while the "This Semester" under the guidance of Mr. Nider provides us with the opportunity to produce our own Object d'art.

Moderator: Fr. McVeigh. P. McCullough, T. McCullough, F. Gensinelli.

With the regularity of the day's sun, each and every week the news letter is prepared, typed and mimeographed by a stalwart few. Under the helpful hand of Fr. McVeigh we have been able to see this little recognized activity serve the school in a most basic fashion.

The biggest and most important activity of our Color Guard is its part in our May march in honor of our Blessed Mother.

The final result of all the effort expended on our behalf in the "More Man." To produce this well-developed and careful end we must learn to work in unity with our compatriots towards many and often difficult goals. Through the efforts of our coach, Mr. J. Purcel, and our guide in the formative time of our basketball skill, Mr. P. Croley, we are indebted. The modulation of these efforts is achieved under the patient hand of Fr. Prior, C.M., our moderator.

BASKETBALL

Reach, reach for a victory at home.

Like any sincere effort, we must be diligent, forceful and single minded in order to achieve our end.

At times we seek our "goal" somewhat strangely, as here in the person of L. White.

CROSS COUNTRY

Father McVeigh and Coach John Kelly brief Tom Carr, this year's able captain of the Cross Country Team, on the activities for the day.

Our coach and moderator hold the banner of S.T.M. high for us. They encourage us to reach and perhaps if we persevere and follow their fine example some day we will be as much a "Tommie" as they. Moderator: Fr. McVeigh. Coach: Mr. J. Kelly.

FORTY-SEVENTH STREET AND WYALUSING AVENUE
PHILADELPHIA 31, PA.

To the Seniors
St. Thomas More High School
47th & Wyalusing Avenue
Philadelphia 31, Pennsylvania

Dear Seniors:

It is my privilege to extend congratulations and best wishes to each of the members of the graduating class. As these lines are being written, I wonder if you will reread them five, ten, possibly twenty years from now.

We have spent four years together at St. Thomas More High School. These were four very important years in your life because they were formative years. As you leave us, you do not cease to be of interest and concern to us. It is our fervent prayer that you will always be a holy, happy and successful Catholic gentleman.

As you turn these pages, offer a prayer for your teachers, some of whom will be continuing to do for others what they have done for you, and for those who, with the passing of the years, will have been called to their eternal reward.

May the blessing of God the Father, the Son and the holy Spirit descend upon you and remain with you always.

Sincerely,

(Rev.) John J. Cusack, C.M.
Rector
